Amanda Sullivan MS,ATC

Amanda provides young athletes with injury screening, injury prevention information and specialty services offered by SSM Health Cardinal Glennon SportsCare. Cardinal Glennon SportsCare is the premier pediatric sports medicine provider throughout the St Louis area. We provide exclusive direct access to comprehensive medical care for your young athletes with a free 24/7 concierge line that connects you directly with Amanda, an athletic trainer. She will triage any injuries and help navigate the healthcare system to find the best provider for your child. Her goal is to provide young athletes the same exceptional care our elite and college athletes receive. She can evaluate any athletes that are having problems and give the parents recommendations, such as exercises to do at home or help make an appointment with specialist if needed.

She attended Southern Illinois University Carbondale for her undergraduate education, where she received her bachelor's degree in 2001 in physical education specializing in athletic training.

Amanda went on to graduate school, where she earned her master's degree in 2003 in sports psychology and biomechanics from Illinois State University. While attending graduate school, she worked as the head athletic trainer for the softball team. Since graduating she has worked at the college and high level as an athletic trainer and also as a physician extender in a sports medicine orthopedic surgeons office.

Many of our services are offered in multiple locations so that your child can be treated close to home. Because we have access to multiple specialities, we guarantee your child will get the best care for their injury.
